

RISPE

Prologue

Long ago, all the inhabitants of Papora lived in sadness, envy, greed, hatred, chaos... it was deplorable, it was as if God had abandoned them. Until a former king, a hero named Viatas took the lead, unifying the kingdom and undoing the accumulated evil in exchange for a terrible price, not only his body, but his soul was also corrupted.

Trapped in a peculiar purple crown, Viatas has been protected and will be protected with respect by all the kings of Papora, for despite keeping the soul of the hero, is full of all evil and is able to cause great temptation and different phenomena in their carriers.

Unfortunately, this legend was interrupted...

When the kingdom of Papora lived its greatest boom of harmony and peace in history, an epidemic affected the kingdom and the current queen acquired a degenerative disease that gradually worsened. Risper, the present bearer of the Crown affected by this fact is seduced by a completely rotten and corrupt Viatas.

Under the ideal of saving his wife embarks on a journey along the seven great cities of the kingdom, where the most important battles and events of Viatas's life happened and are currently flagship cities.

CHAPTER ONE

After a long journey Risper and Viatas arrive in the first city, Castita. Risper is guided by Viatas throughout the city to reach an old iron monolith, unable to activate it they decide to go around the city committing all kinds of evils until finally they manage to open the monolith.

This was an old door leading to a shrine, where after solving some riddles and avoiding difficulties they reach the bottom, in which is a Guardian "Bidoli". Finally, after to overcome it can access a small pillar. Viatas indicates to Risper to put it in him, followed by this, a red light arises from the center of the city.

The sin of lust has been liberated...

Risper returns to seize Viatas, however when this happens Risper falls faint, loses his forces and falls asleep.

In his dream seems to be in an ancient time, can see the city, plunged into chaos until a person comes, very similar to him. The scene is interrupted with a relentless darkness:

"Do we need God? He abandoned us, it's time to enjoy!"

Upon waking Risper feels as if part of his humanity were lost, Viatas had absorbed it, yet he feels great power and happiness inside. After leaving the sanctuary Risper saw the dreary city and without traces of human life, or at least rational human life. All had succumbed to lust, to madness.

For now, it's not time to worry about minor things, is necessary to continue the journey.

They come to the second city, Temperanta. Then access the monolith, in this case of bronze. After completing the sanctuary of this occasion, they encounter the Guardian "Aviditas" and after defeating it and repeat the crown procedure, an orange light come out from the center of the city.

The sin of gluttony has been liberated...

Risper loses strength again, but this time does not fall faint, probably because a part of it is already corrupted.

This does not stop him from having another vision, this time the protagonist of his dream is walking through the streets of a burning city. See people running around everywhere, they finally come to the center of the city, where it seems to be the destination. The dream is interrupted in the same way, this time it hears:

"We starve, God dies of joy when he is looking down on us!"

After leaving the sanctuary Risper can see the dreary city and without traces of human life, or at least rational human life. All had succumbed to gluttony, to madness.

For now, it's not time to worry about minor things, is necessary to continue the journey.

They reach the third city, Generossta. Then access the monolith, in this case of ivory. After completing the sanctuary of this occasion, they encounter the keeper "Vaarita". After defeating him and repeating the procedure of the Crown, a yellow light come out from the center of the city.

The sin of Greed has been released...

Risper loses strength again, but this time does not fall faint, probably because a part of it is already corrupted.

This does not stop him from having another vision, this time the protagonist of his dream is looking at the construction of what looks like the shrine where it is at that time. Sleep is interrupted in the same way, this time Risper hears:

"We deserve more than God, we suffer, he rests "

After leaving the sanctuary Risper can see the dreary city and without traces of human life, or at least rational human life. All had succumbed to greed, to madness.

They reach the fourth city, Diligente. Then access the monolith, in this case of copper. After completing the sanctuary of this occasion, they encounter the keeper "Diam". After beating him and repeating the procedure of the Crown and a green light comes out from the center of the city.

The sin of laziness has been liberated...

Risper loses strength again, but this time is different, since more than half of the soul Risper was corrupted This simply causes a headache.

This does not stop him from having another vision, this time the protagonist of his dream is looking at the construction of the great copper monolith. Sleep is interrupted in the same way, this time Risper hears:

"Is God not omnipotent? Fix the world!"

After leaving the sanctuary Risper can see the dreary city and without traces of human life, or at least human life rope. They had all succumbed to the Laziness, to madness.

CHAPTER TWO

Viatas and Risper are half road. 4 Cities have fallen, 3 more and finally the plan of Viatas will be completed.

There is only one problem, when they get to the Fifth City Karitta, a blinding light appears in the skies and what looks like the figure of an angel appears in the clouds. Followed by him there seems to be an enormous army of smaller angels.

It was obvious why their arrival, they were here to stop the advance of Risper and Viatas and to reestablish the order of the world. Evidently the way of Risper and Viatas would continue throughout the city, passing through streets filled with angels and enemies until they could reach the Jade monolith. This time the keeper "Rayamuu" is not alone, the angels are protecting him. After getting rid of those pests, Risper Active The pillar and a blue light come out from the center of the city.

The sin of envy has been liberated...

Risper feels the headache, although at this point this is nothing for a condemned Risper.

This does not stop him from having another vision, this time the events he sees are not as peaceful as before, apparently is a great massacre of people and Angels, to finally form a Circle of blood all over the city. Sleep is interrupted in the same way, this time Risper hears:

“If God loved us so much, why would he let us die?”

The problem is that there is no time to rest, it is better to flee from the Angels and end the Guardians fast. After leaving the sanctuary Risper can see the city in flames dingy and full of angels, without traces of human life, or at least rational human life. They had all succumbed to envy, to madness.

They came to the penultimate city, Pattenti. The city seems to be full of angels, only there is a problem, these do not seem to be worried about the arrival of Risper and Viatas as they seem to have problems struggling with what used to be human and now, they are only wild beasts full of madness.

Obviously, they do not seem to want to negotiate and attack everything that moves, unfortunately Risper fits in the description of "something that moves" and is attacked by these. After a long walk of Death to Angels and "demons" come to the monolith of Ruby in the center of the city.

It seems that the beasts did not reach the center of the sanctuary, the guardian "Karii" Is waiting, and the Angels are protecting him. After getting rid of those pests, Risper active the Pillar and an Indigo light come out from the center of the city.

The sin of Wrath has been liberated...

Risper feels the headache, although at this point this is nothing for a condemned Risper.

This does not stop him from having another vision, this time is back in the old palace of Papora, where there is a giant structure which in its center is resting a crown, a golden crown equal to Viatas. Sleep is interrupted in the same way, this time Risper hears:

"God betrayed us and deserves a punishment"

The problem is that there is no time to rest and much less to think about what he had seen, it is better to flee from the Angels quickly. After leaving the sanctuary you can see the city in flames dingy and full of angels, without traces of human life, or at least rational human life. They had all succumbed to anger, to madness.

CHAPTER THREE

Only one city was missing and finally the Viatas plan.

Only one city was missing, and the world would go back to chaos and destruction.

Just missing Humillite. Unlike the other cities this was curiously empty, there were no humans, there were no angels, no one was there.

Ignoring this, Risper and Viatas followed to the center of the city Finding the gold monolith, but it was rusty. After thinking about a Solution and not finding any decided to return to the castle, Risper already had too much power. He had already completed his goal.

But...

What was his goal?

Why does you want power?

Why did I work so hard, I wanted to get?

All these questions resonated in Risper's head, no answer. Apparently, these had been lost at some point in their pursuit, when his soul got corrupted.

I still felt that I would find those answers in the castle, so he had no doubt, he had to go back to the castle.

After a while at last I arrived at the castle, the outside was on fire, but it was not a problem, Risper quickly made its way through the castle, from where more and more knights came out in order Defend it from inhuman villagers.

When he came to the end of the castle and entered the last room he stumbled upon the truth.

His wife.

But he was afraid to enter the room, he was a monster, and she was a queen. At least he remembered his objectives, ideals. Gave him a reason to follow. It would all end soon.

At that time Viatas guided Risper to a place he remembered vaguely. It was the secret sanctuary that was in the old castle of Papora, and in front of them stood a pillar of gold.

It was the place where everything had started and where everything would end.

Rispe placed Viatas in the pillar and suddenly a violet light came out of the pillar.

The sin of pride has been liberated...

However, this time had been different, all the lights of previous sins were united in this and of nothing a Giant Tower was forming around them. While this was happening Rispe had his last vision.

This time one could see all Papora, with the cities surrounded by the circle of magic, from one moment to another they threw a ray of light that was concentrated in the castle. The golden crown rises and little by little It is losing its luster, it is becoming darker until it goes completely black and emits an aura of pure evil. It was all the evil of Papora.

Obviously, this historic achievement would not be free, many lives were sacrificed in the process, and one was still missing. The life of the first king of Papora, Viatas.

At last, the tower was finished building. The tower that would lead to Rispe and Viatas to heaven.

After an intense battle up the tower, they finally reach the entrance to heaven. But his entrance would be no easy thing, "Perbio" The Keeper of pride was waiting for them.

After defeating him, Rispe was facing his last proof, at the origin of all evil. The cause of so much death and destruction. The main cause of his wife dying.

Rispe and Viatas faced their greatest enemy, the conception of the whole, the conception of God.

Epilogue

Everything around him was destruction.

A figure was distinguished from all. He was descending a long staircase from an immense tower that was destroying himself in his path, a tower that symbolized everything.

Beneath this, was a dark and shining castle at once. A kingdom full of life and death at the same time. And the figure showed happiness and sadness at the same time.

Arriving at the base of the tower, he began to walk around the castle remembering his entire journey as he was heading to the last room on the top floor. He was nostalgic.

He had been through so much.

Finally comes to a wooden door.

He removes his crown, golden, half destroyed. He shakes the dust, cleans the blood off his face.

He finally decides to open the door, while he swells his chest, and it shows a big smile.

In the big room it can only be seen an open window and a big bed.

Empty...

As he approaches, he can see a note directed to "Rispe", along with a long white feather.

Rispe opens the letter and reads it. It just shows a bitter smile and a sweet tear.

.

.

.

.

End